Plantation FC Club Philosophy

Plantation Football Club is a non-profit organization that provides the opportunity for youth soccer players to experience the game of soccer. Our objective is to develop great soccer players along with great human beings. Players are exposed to the technical, tactical, psychological, and physical demands of the game. In addition they will also experience team-building, sportsmanship, work ethic, and leadership skills that will benefit the players for the remainder of the lives on and off the soccer field.

Obstacles are things a person sees when he takes his eyes off his goal. ~ E Joseph Cossman

Andrew Booth – US Youth Soccer – Region III 2010 Boys '97 Pool

Plantation FC would like to congratulate Andrew Booth from our u14 boys team for being selected for the Region III pool in Alabama in July 2010. Andrew played against South Carolina, South Texas and North Carolina. He also participated in 3 “pool” games where he played with the best players from each southeast state. Throughout his time in Alabama, US Youth Soccer Region III coaches identified players from all region III states in order to identify talent for the region team and the national team. Andrew said, “It was really fun but tiring. You have to work hard and make sure you’re conditioned and have the right mind-set. You can’t worry about the results; you have to worry more about showing yourself.” Andrew has been a part of PFC since the age of 8.

EDUCATION

Games vs. Training

At the most recent FYSA AGM in Orlando, one of the topics of discussion was the amount of games that our youth players are playing over a year period. In many cases, kids are reaching the “100 Game” mark per season. Parents and coaches are under the impression that players need to play as many games as possible in order to get better. “The more games, the better?” This is not the case, especially when the objective is to develop individuals and their ability to play the game. There are many arguments why the training to game ratio should be around 3 to 1. One of the arguments is the amount of times a player touches a ball in a game vs. training. In the end, I would say we all agree that in order for a player to improve their technical ability, they must touch the ball. Well, here are some alarming statistics to show that a “100 game” season is not the answer to making better players.
